Photo 16: This view is typical of the area north of Oshivelo and before the powerline crosses the tar road westwards. Low density thornbush is interrupted with widely spaced homesteads, kraals and small fields. The area is heavily grazed by domestic livestock.

Photo 17: An area with more extensive fields, which is not typical for this route section. Homesteads are far apart. The grasslands of the Andoni flats are visible on the horizon.

Photo 18: The saline grasslands near the bend point marked K. Point K on the map was moved about 10km to the north-east of the line flown in order to avoid these grasslands which are important for large birds.
